

Making Compound Sentences _____ _____

and but or if so

Use the conjunctions listed above to form a compound sentence from the two simple sentences.

Abby wanted a kitten for Christmas. She got a hamster instead.

Evan's family can grill hamburgers for dinner. They could make spaghetti.

Randall won one million dollars. He bought his mother a new house.

Holly wanted to go to the park. She had to finish her homework.

Robert ate pancakes for breakfast. He ate a hotdog for lunch.

You can have chocolate pudding. You eat your vegetables first.

Making Compound Sentences with Answer Key

and but or if so

Use the conjunctions listed above to form a compound sentence from the two simple sentences.

Abby wanted a kitten for Christmas. She got a hamster instead.
Abby wanted a kitten for Christmas, but she got a hamster instead.

Evan's family can grill hamburgers for dinner. They could make spaghetti.
Evan's family can grill hamburgers for dinner, or they could make spaghetti.

Randall won one million dollars. He bought his mother a new house.
Randall won one millions dollars, so he bought his mother a new house.

Holly wanted to go to the park. She had to finish her homework.
Holly wanted to go to the park, but she had to finish her homework.

Robert ate pancakes for breakfast. He ate a hotdog for lunch.
Robert ate pancakes for breakfast, and he ate a hotdog for lunch.

You can have chocolate pudding. You eat your vegetables first.
You can have chocolate pudding, if you eat your vegebables first.
