

Using Reflexive Pronouns

---

Reflexive pronouns all have the word "self" in them (or "selves" if the pronoun is plural). Reflexive pronouns wrap themselves around a verb to mirror the pronoun (or antecedent) that comes before the verb.

For example:    She sees herself.
                         pronoun    verb    reflexive pronoun

                         The dog shook itself.
                         antecedent    verb    reflexive pronoun

Choose a reflexive pronoun from the list to complete each sentence. Be sure your reflexive pronoun mirrors (or agrees with) the pronoun or antecedent that is the subject of the sentence.

Reflexive Pronouns:

myself	himself	herself	themselves
ourselves	itself	yourself

The children stuffed _____ with candy and cake at the party.

I saw _____ in the mirror, and I looked good!

Thomas helped _____ to another slice of apple pie.

The television magically turned _____ off!

You don't give _____ enough credit for the good work you do!

Elizabeth enjoyed _____ in the new swimming pool

We worked _____ to death helping do all the yard work.

Using Reflexive Pronouns Answer Key

Reflexive pronouns all have the word "self" in them (or "selves" if the pronoun is plural). Reflexive pronouns wrap themselves around a verb to mirror the pronoun (or antecedent) that comes before the verb.

For example:    She sees herself.
                         pronoun    verb    reflexive pronoun

                         The dog shook itself.
                         antecedent    verb    reflexive pronoun

Choose a reflexive pronoun from the list to complete each sentence. Be sure your reflexive pronoun mirrors (or agrees with) the pronoun or antecedent that is the subject of the sentence.

Reflexive Pronouns:

myself	himself	herself	themselves
ourselves	itself	yourself

The children stuffed themselves with candy and cake at the party.

I saw myself in the mirror, and I looked good!

Thomas helped himself to another slice of apple pie.

The television magically turned itself off!

You don't give yourself enough credit for the good work you do!

Elizabeth enjoyed herself in the new swimming pool

We worked ourselves to death helping do all the yard work.